she was resting, and this did the night pass away.
Towards morning the innkeeper's wife entered the room, and seeing the funeral couch empty, and the young man resting by the fireplace, she cried out with fright.
This noise awoke the patient. The rest he had taken, as well as the wine and broth that had been administered to him, had made him recover some strength. He stood up, and said, eagerly:
"Ah! I feel quite well now. What disorder there is in the room. Why am I not laid in the bed?" Then perceiving Emilia, he added, with a smile, "You were here last night; I remember it well. You nursed me, I saw you, but was not able to thank you, pray, may I ask your name?"
"She is your nurse, as well as myself, sir," abruptly replied Suzanne. "My child, put on your cloak, and go home. Tell my sister to come, and, in the meanwhile, you may go to bed until evening."
Emilia arose, she obeyed slowly. As she passed closely to the foot of the bed, she picked up the wreath of everlasting, and concealed it under her cloak. She was about departing, but when passing the threshold, she leant, half fainting, against the door, and pressing her head with her hands, faltered, "Oh dear me, how poorly I feel!"
The old dame ran to her, and received her, fainting, in her arms. She immediately called out to the hostess, and desired her to procure a sedan chair to send home the young girl.

THE DROUGHT.—One of the Editors of the West Tennessee Whig has just returned from a trip through Kentucky, Ohio, and a part of Indiana, and thus speaks of the drought where he traveled:—"In the whole course of our lives we have never witnessed such distress as has been occasioned through those States by the drought. In some places there has not been one drop of rain for three months or more. In some portions of Kentucky we noticed two-thirds of the forest trees dead—the whole top literally scorched and burnt up—scarcely a sprig of green grass to be seen. Large streams that were never known to cease running during the summer before, now just as dry as a powder horn. Wells and springs gone dry, that have heretofore, all seasons, furnished abundant water, have given out. Speculators are buying up the corn all through the country, and will evidently make somebody suffer. A gentleman in Nashville told us that he had just paid $4 25 per barrel."
The price of corn has already fallen in Nashville from $5 to $2 75 a $3 50 per bu., and we hope soon to hear similar news from other sections of the country.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON.—Opposed, as in many instances the constitutional views of Mr. Hamilton have been to those of Mr. Benton, the gentleman, in his "Thirty Years in the United States Senate," pays the following beautiful tribute to his memory:

"He was the man most eminent, and variously endowed of all the eminent men of his day; at once soldier and statesman, with a hand to execute; a writer an orator, a jurist an organizing mind able to grasp the greatest system and administrative to execute the smallest details; wholly turned to the practical business of life and with a capacity application and production, which teemed with gigantic labors each worthy to be the product of a single master intellect but lavished in letters from the ever teeming fecundity of his prolific genius. Hard his fate when withdrawing from public life at the age of thirty-four he felt himself constrained to appeal to posterity for that justice which contemporaries withheld from him. And the appeal was not in vain. Statues rise to his memory, history embalms his name; posterity will do justice to the man who at the age of twenty was 'the principal and most confidential aid of Washington,' who retained the confidence of the Father of his Country to the last, and to whom honorable opponents, while opposing his system of policy, accord honor and patriotism, and social affections, and transcendent abilities."

MURDER MOST FOUL.—We learn that a gentleman from Abbeville District, S. C., named Lanser, was brutally murdered on the Clinch Mountain, in Grainger county, Tenn., a few days ago, by four villains. It seems that Mr. Lanser was buying up horses, and was decoyed from Bean's Station to an unfrequented part of the country, by the scoundrels, and there basely murdered for his money. They had not, at the date of our information, been arrested. An old woman, in some way connected with the transaction, had been committed.

ASHVILLE (M. C.) NEWS, 14 inst.
ANOTHER.—We learn that John Davis, Esq., a highly respectable citizen living on Crooked Creek in the adjoining county of McDowell, was assassinated on Sunday night the 3d instant. A man living near him has been arrested and lodged in jail at Marion, circumstances seeming to fasten the crime upon him.

Crime appears to be fearfully on the increase in every part of the country.—16.

THE REPUBLICAN.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1854.

This Paper is filed, and may be seen free of charge, at HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT ESTABLISHMENT, 244, STRAND LONDON, where Advertisements and Subscriptions will be received for this Periodical.

DALTON RAIL ROAD.—We have received a letter from Dr. S. S. Bailey, Pres. of the Rail Road from Dalton to this place, informing us that the survey and location will be commenced on Monday next the 16th, inst. The sickness of the Chief Engineer has prevented the commencement of the survey at an earlier day.

The friends of this enterprise are in fine spirits and strong in the faith of success, at every step they say they receive additional encouragement. A New Yorker, we suppose agent of a company, has recently proposed to build the entire road provided $150,000 of cash paying stock was subscribed. The amount subscribed here for survey will be needed in a short time.

The city Council of Rome has promptly responded to the call of the citizens of that place by subscribing $100,000 stock to the Rome and Jacksonville Rail Road. The citizens of Rome and Cave Spring have also subscribed liberally.

For the convenience of those at a distance who may have business with the "Jacksonville Mining Company," we publish the following list of officers:

W. H. FORNEY, Pres't.
L. W. CANNON, Sec'y.
JAMES CROW, Treas.
G. O. WHITLEY,

J. A. McCAMPBELL, Directors.

ALUM SPRINGS.—A valuable discovery has recently been made of alum springs in McDowell County, North Carolina, near the Swannanoa gap. The water has already proved to be very valuable in several forms of disease.

Great Storm on the Texas Coast.—There has recently occurred on the Texas coast, a very destructive gale, commencing on the 18th ult. and continuing until the 21st. During its prevalence there was a great loss of life, and immense destruction of shipping and property of almost every description. The town of Matagorda was almost totally destroyed.

COOL WEATHER.—On Monday and Tuesday last we had considerable rain, which ended on Tuesday night with a north-west storm of considerable violence. Since then the weather has been clear and cool, and frost was discovered by some of our citizens on Thursday morning.

The Atlanta Intelligencer is now published daily. It is a very neat and interesting sheet, and contains more reading matter than any daily we have ever received. It will be found useful to citizens of the country as well as the city, and well deserves their patronage.

The Yellow fever appears to be abating at Charleston and Savannah, and most of the places where it has prevailed. We hope the cool weather will have a favorable influence on the health of the cities, and that the business relations which have been so sadly deranged by the prevalence of cholera and yellow fever, may soon be restored to regular action.

The Week's Mortality.

The tabular statement of the mortality for week ending Wednesday, P. M., says the Savannah Georgian shows sixty-eight cases less than for the week previous. Although there seem to be a decided falling off in the number of deaths for the past two days, we do not feel at liberty to consider it an evidence that the disease has received a permanent check. We cannot expect the epidemic will receive its death blow, until we have had one or two good frosts.

The interment for the past five weeks have been as follows:

Interments. Yellow Fever.
Week ending Aug. 23d, 67 42
Week ending Aug. 29th, 92 90
Week ending Sept. 5th, 123 74
Week ending Sept. 12th, 210 129
Week ending Sept. 19th, 159 131
Week ending Sept. 26th, 121 85

Candidates for Governor.

The Marshall Eagle has published an editorial article favoring the running of J. L. M. Curry, Esq., of Talladega, for next Governor of Alabama, and the Coosa River Democrat, after saying, very truly that it is time enough yet to agitate the subject, comes out strongly in favor of Col. William B. Martin, of Benton, for the distinguished office. Some time the ensuing winter, we think, will be time enough to go into a canvass for the Governorship, and we are content to "bide the time."—Mont. Adv.

INFLUENCE OF QUACKERY ON HEALTH.

MORALS, &c.

The most scientific Physicians of the age admit that in past ages, too much Medicine has generally been given to the sick. Excessive medication has been a fault, and why simply because a large proportion of the diseases for which physicians are called upon to prescribe are imaginary and the patient really needs no medicine. All Physicians and Metaphysicians agree on this point, that the imagination has an important agency both in the production and cure of disease. The mind and body are so intimately associated, that they mutually affect each other. Many real diseases are merely functional, and not organic in their nature; for instance, a clock or watch may be perfect in all its wheels and yet fail to keep time accurately, because it is not well regulated; so the human system may be sound in all its parts, and yet its healthy functions may be so deranged as to render the patient really ill. Now what does such a man need? a change of diet, of place, and new objects of attention; increased exercise; or some inert and harmless medicine to satisfy the demands of the patient: the existence of these imaginary diseases, gives the Homoeopathist his wonderful success; being called in many cases where the patient needs no medicine, he administers an infinite small quantity. Just to satisfy the demands of the sick, that something should be done, and he speedily recovers. Will the same man ever persuade himself that the efficiency of a medicine is increased precisely as its quantity is diminished, and that the smaller the dose the more potent its influence? If the doctrines of the founder of Homoeopathy be true, an ounce of Opium would convert Lake Superior into excellent Paregoric, and the world might be supplied with a soporific mixture already shaken and fit for use as long as time shall last. Hennenman was a deceiver and an impostor, his own language is this: "I give medicines, but very seldom, although I prescribed small powders. I do this for the sake of keeping up in the patient's mind the firm belief that such powder contains a particular dose of some medicine. Most patients will get well by adopting a simple mode of living." &c.

Besides the imaginary diseases above alluded to, another class arises from slight indigestion, or from intemperance in food or drink. A man abuses his system by excessive eating, or by improper or innutritious food; he suffers from nausea, faintness and depression of spirits; at night he is troubled by bad dreams or incubus. Another, perhaps has been too closely confined to a sedentary life; his limbs are stiff and he feels languid and feeble. What does such a patient need? the first should fast, the second should take up his bed and walk. But while they are suffering from a voluntary transgression of the laws of health, the advertisement of some Nostrum Vendor meets their eyes. It matters little what the medicine may be, it is adapted to cure any and every disease: their symptoms are exactly described—thousands have already been cured, and respectable men certify to the efficiency of the offered remedy—they are persuaded to try it, they take into the stomach, already effebled and needing rest a stimulant, perhaps an active poison which operates as a local irritant. The patient immediately feels better, and the next day is ready to certify to the wonderful efficiency of the new remedy; and on the following he finds it necessary to resort to it again. The miraculous cure can be easily accounted for: the operation of the stimulant is simply this, it has pleased the Creator to lay up in the storehouse of the human constitution a vast amount of strength and animal spirits, which remain latent while the system is in healthy and undisturbed action, but are developed by certain exciting agents and causes. This dormant energy may be awakened to action either through the agency of strong passions and mental excitement, or by medical agents, operating mechanically upon the delicate lining membrane of the internal organs. Alcohol and all the diffusive stimulants operate in this way upon the animal system.

As most of the nostrums of the day contain Alcohol or Opium, we may very well illustrate the operation of Patent Medicine, by the well known effects of alcohol. Alcohol like other active poisons is indigestible and of course Innutritious. No part of the system can assimilate it; when taken into the mouth its tendency is to corrode its living surface, and produce a burning sensation in the organs of taste; it produces the same effect upon the stomach: it is taken up by the absorbents and mingling with the blood it moves in a fiery current through the arteries and veins, visiting in its course the lungs, the liver, and the brain. Of course the longer the system is excited and there is an increase of nervous energy, and consequently an increase of strength and animal spirits. The latent powers of the system are aroused, and the machinery of life moves with an increased and unnatural velocity. This effect continues until the offensive fluid being rejected after every portion of life within, is thrown off from the system by the emunctories and pores of the skin. There it operates as a deceiver: the weary man drinks and feels refreshed; he is as he believes both brighter and stronger; while in fact he has only drawn in advance upon that nervous energy which is treasured up to meet the demands of the system in cases of emergency. Any of the violent passions would when in action produce the same result. But in the human constitution, as in physics, action and reaction are equal and in contrary directions. The unnatural excitement from whatever cause produced, whether by alcohol, vegetable elixirs, or passion, is followed by unnatural depression and consequent physical exhaustion. A man by using artificial stimulants, may do the work of two days in one, and he will live two days in one; and this is the reason why drunkards do not live out half their days. The same is true of those who swallow large quantities of Patent Medicines, which usually contain some active Poison. The operation is stimulant, or local irritant upon the already jaded stomach—destroy its healthy action, and produce a chronic and incurable disease. But it may be asked, if this be the ordinary effect of frequent medication by popular nostrums, why are so many cures announced? The answer is obvious, the sick recover in spite of the medicine. They would recover much sooner without it. The cure of the Scrofula by the royal touch—their Weapon Ointment, and sympathy powder, in popular use about two hundred years ago, furnishes testimony in point. For many generations it has been customary for the Kings of England to lay their hands upon persons afflicted with the "Kings Evil" (so called), and hang a piece of gold around the neck of each patient. The prodigal, Charles II, is said to have touched nearly 100,000 patients of this description, all of whom were essentially benefited, except in cases of deficient faith. The peculiar mental state of patients in such cases may have modified renal disease; still the virtue resided in the patient, not in the King. The unguentina armarium, or Weapon Ointment, which was so popular for a time in healing wounds was applied to the weapon and not to the wound. A similar use was made of the sympathetic powders, for the relief of pain. A handkerchief belonging to the sick was moistened with a solution of the powders and he was relieved. Thousands were ready to testify to the efficacy of each of these absurd curative processes. The truth is, no man is proof against deception when the body is weakened by disease, real or imaginary. The most intelligent are easily duped by Quacks. Their medicines always promise more than any medicine however good, could be expected to perform. It is safe to assert that there is not an advertised nostrum in the market which does not hold out false hopes to the sick. Every such advertisement is an imposition upon the public, whether it come from physicians, regular, irregular or defective; and in the grammar of medicine the latter class is very numerous. If one tithe of what the vegetable doctors assert were true, we might attain unto what the progenitors of our race would have secured by partaking of the tree of life, we might live forever! If the pompous assertions of the makers of cosmetic washes for the face, and beautifying lotions were true, we might have ladies beautiful as the hours, with the assurance of perpetual juvenescence; in a word, we might bid defiance to the darts of Death, and the vegetable doctor might stand over the prostrate King of Terrors, and exclaim in triumph:—"O Death, where is thy sting?" and then turn to his patient, and in the language of oriental adulation, exclaim: "O patient live forever!" The fact that new nostrums remain popular only for a brief period proves that their healing virtues like the diseases they propose to cure are imaginary. Each remedy has its brief day of glory, and is succeeded by a rival candidate for the popular applause.

Each new invention has a two-fold office, it comes to bury the dead and herald a new race. Every fresh advertisement denounces all rivals as deceivers and impostors. These makers and vendors of nostrums abuse each other like pick-pockets on all sides it is war to the knife and the knife to the hilt; the dead lie prostrate on many a hard fought field; but it is the patients who die, not the Quacks. But are we not bound to believe what these impostors say of each other? If we can trust their promises we certainly are bound to credit their assertions concerning the fraternity. They warn us, as we value health, to shun all prescriptions of Quacks, except their own, and this is done by every inventor of a new medicine. But of all the gross and palpable impostures upon the public exclusive of the pretense that the Indians understand the healing virtues of roots and herbs, is the most absurd and monstrous. Civilized and Christian men having recourse to savages to learn science! It is however a notorious fact that Indian medicine men, as they are called, are the greatest impostors, they surpass their civilized imitators. They on Herod Herod in knavery the whole system of practice among the Indians has always consisted in fraud and pretence. Catlin, who spent years among our North American Indians, constantly affirms this—he knew it really nothing of the powers of simples, their on-day over the sick, charms, spells, and incantations, and make use of amulets and consecrated medicine bags as curative agents, &c.

The Drought and Deep Plowing.—How Short Crops might have been converted into long ones.

The effects of deep plowing have often been forced upon the attention of agriculturists throughout the country, by the most satisfactory results to those who resort to it. Geo. E. Waring, junior, an agricultural writer of high character, in a letter to the New York Tribune, gives the gratifying results of the labors of a farmer whose science has enabled him to draw from the earth abundant crops in the midst of the present widely extended and destructive drought—not less fatal in its effects upon farms in this immediate neighborhood (in New Jersey) than it is here in Tennessee. Mr. Waring says:

"The points on which the farmer needs, and may obtain, instruction are very numerous, and we propose only to note the point in question. It is not too bold an assertion to say that no good practical farmer will allow his crops to suffer largely from drought. The remedy is simple and natural. Subsoil ploughing, accompanied by under draining on wet lands and even without it on those which are sufficiently dry, is a sure protection against this famine producing scourge.

"A few moments reflection will convince any man that this must prove an infallible remedy, because we know that there is always the same amount of water about the surface of the earth. In winter there is more in the soil than in the summer, while in summer that which has been dried out of the soil exists in the atmosphere, being maintained in a vapory condition by the heat resident among its particles. Without this heat, it must immediately contract and become a liquid form. The cold pitcher robs heat from the vapor of a summer atmosphere, and causes it to be deposited in a liquid form. The cold earth at night is thus supplied with dew.

"On the same principle subsoiling prevents drought. It opens the subsoil for a circulation of air. This subsoil, from its shaded position, is always cool, and hence it takes heat from the moisture of the air permeating it. It acts the part of the cold pitcher. This is the simple, natural reason for the whole action, and any farmer in the world may understand it. But this may be called book farming, so I will give an example of its practical character.

I yesterday visited the farm of Professor Mapes. The whole country about Newark wears a peculiarly burnt up appearance, and the dust on the roads was even for New Jersey. I had previously asserted that I knew Mapes' farm to be exempt from the ravages of the drought, and truly I found my predictions fully realized. Not a single plant seemed suffering from want of moisture; and with their roots deeply located in the subsoil, they seemed fairly to snap their fingers at the cloudless sky, and rather to rail at old Sol for trying to interfere with their private affairs.

"One crop of corn deserves especial notice from its absolute magnificence. Notwithstanding the fact that it is growing on the north western slope of a hill, and has not been visited by rain for weeks, yet it stands apparently regardless of all natural circumstances; and although from its location and unfavorable season, one would think that bushels per acre are a large field, it will without doubt be nearer one hundred bushels per acre. Here is an instance where truly scientific knowledge has rendered its possessor entirely independent of the greatest drawback to ordinary success, and enabled him to raise good crops in a bad season.

"If this is not practical farming I would ask some follower of the grand father system to tell us what it is. Let the devotee of national growth, ask himself which will produce the greatest benefit to the country, doubling our commerce or inducing every farmer to use the subsoil and draining tile."

Gold.—An exchange furnishes the following curious calculations:

The enormous sum of $204,000,000 in gold has been received at the mint in Philadelphia, from the California, from the first discovery of the precious metal to Dec. 1, 1853. Now in order to give some idea to the general reader of the immense amount of $204,000,000, I will merely state that allowing each silver dollar to weigh one ounce avoirdupois, sixteen to the $50,000 lbs., or 6,375 tons, allowing 2,000 lbs. to the ton. To carry this weight it would require 6,375 wagons, containing a ton each, to occupy a space of 25 feet, would extend in a continuous line a fraction short of 80 miles. In order to count such a vast sum of money as this very few persons have any idea of the time it would require, without making calculations to the effect. Having in self asked several individuals familiar with figures how long it would take to count the sum above mentioned, they have so widely differed in time that one could scarcely express a mile at the result. Now ascertain the fact which may be made as plain as A B C, we will suppose a person to count 60 of these silver dollars a minute, 8,000 an hour, 48,000 a day, 12 hours each, of Sundays included, 15,768,000 a year. I say to count this stupendous amount of money in silver dollars, it would require a fraction short of 18 years.

One Thousand Lives Lost.

The special correspondent of the N. Y. Herald at San Francisco says that the clipper ship Mermaid had arrived at that port, with late advices from Hong Kong (China) which state that two ships bound for California had been wrecked in the China seas, with a loss of one thousand lives.

THE LATE DUEL IN KENTUCKY.—The Cincinnati Gazette has the following account of the duel that was fought in Kentucky on Monday last briefly mentioned by telegraph a few days since.

Sometimes since, Mr. Henry Short Jr., a clerk on Fifth street, became attached to a beautiful young lady, residing on Fifth street and to whom he soon engaged himself for marriage. Mr. Short, about a month ago went to Philadelphia on a visit to his parents, who reside on Chestnut street, in that city. During his absence he received a letter from a fellow clerk that his betrothed lady, love was keeping the company of a young "limb of the law," named Alexander Peacock, now a resident of Chicago, but native of this city.

The letter gave Mr. S. reason to believe that Peacock and his lady love were engaged. Mr. S. returned home and found that all had not been told him—that P. had slandered him, and defamed his character to the young lady, and thus won her affections. Determined to have an explanation, he wrote to Peacock and the lady, and demanded the same. They both treated him coldly, and requested Mr. S. not to annoy them with his communications—the young lady at the same time returning her engagement ring. This so enraged Mr. S. that he sent a challenge to Mr. P., which was accepted, and rifles were chosen as the weapons. Seconds were appointed, who fixed the place of meeting and time. No persons were present except a few friends of each party, and their seconds. At the first fire no injury was sustained by either of the duellists. An effort was then made to reconcile the parties, but neither party would listen to any compromise, and the parties were ordered to their post for the second fire. The word was given and Mr. S. fell bleeding to the ground, the ball having taken effect in his left shoulder. He was then picked up and taken to Mr. Brenson's, farmer's house, and his wound dressed. He is considered in a critical condition. It is now understood that when the young lady learned what had happened, she refused to have anything to do with either parties and has resolved to break off all engagements with each of the gentlemen. It is, therefore, evident that in this case the old adage of "Rat heart never won fair lady," has been reversed.

SINGULAR COINCIDENCE.

The Rev. Dr. Redell relates that while Bishop Chase, of Ohio, was at the house of Mr. Beck, in Philadelphia, he received a package from Dr. Ward, Bishop of Sodor and Man, making inquiries relating to certain property in America, of which some old person of his diocese was the heir. The letter had gone to Philadelphia, and found him at Mr. Beck's. When he read it to Mr. B., the latter was in amazement, and said: Bishop Chase, I am the only man in the world who can give you information. I have the deeds in my possession, and have had them forty three years, not knowing what to do with them or where any heirs were to be found. How wonderful that the application should be made to Bishop Chase, and he not in Ohio, but a guest in the house of the only man who possessed any information on the subject!

The cholera at Columbia, Pa.

has produced such a panic that the country people around the devastated town refuse to hold any intercourse with the citizens, and much suffering from the want of wholesome food had been the result.—The Town Hall has been converted into a temporary hospital for the victims of the disease. Dr. Jewell estimates that if Philadelphia was ravaged in a degree corresponding with her population, as compared with Columbia, the deaths would have reached seventy-five an hour! The same gentleman is of opinion that the exciting cause of the epidemic is in the atmosphere, and not in the water, as the victims have been taken indiscriminately from among those who use the water from the reservoir, and those who drink nothing but spring water. The Susquehanna, at Columbia, is now extremely low, and the quantity of decomposed animal matter in its bed, or lodged above the dam.

With four metallic qualifications.

a man may be pretty sure of worldly success. These are—gold in his pocket, silver in his tongue, brass in his face, and iron in his heart.

Horrible Accident.
A correspondent, writing from Albion, N. Y., gives the particulars of one of the most brutal and horrible accidents we have for some time noticed.
A most thrilling occurrence took place at Clarenceville, O. E. a village bordering this town, on the north, on the night of the 14th ult. a number of persons had assembled in the barroom of McVicker's Hotel for the purpose of drinking of the health of the representative who was elected the day previous. In the progress of the carousal, one Owen, an Irishman, of athletic appearance and industrious habits, (though found in bad company) was the subject of ridicule and human attacks. Two bottles of spirits of turpentine were poured upon his person, completely saturating his clothes, with the fluid. One of the perpetrators of the deed placed his arms around his neck and said, "Come, up and drink," while the other, stepped behind him and ignited the turpentine with a candle, instantly enveloping the poor victim in flames. His clothes were burnt from his body and his flesh was burnt black, even to a crust, before relief could be afforded him. His groans of anguish and suffering were of an excruciating character, and his body presented a spectacle heart-rending to behold. He survived a few days, and ended with much pain; and expired.

The Lunar World.—Mr. Cramp-ton, in a little book entitled "The Lunar World," draws the following interesting picture of the appearance which the satellite would present to a visitor from the terrestrial globe:
"Choose the period of the last quarter, and direct your way to that dark shadowy spot marked N. in the map, and situated to the north-east portion of the lunar globe, it is the Mare Imbrium, or Sea of Showers; as it is called, though no water is to be found there and no shower ever cools or moistens its barren surface. It is about seven hundred miles in extent every way. Let us cast our eyes around, and what do we see?—a boundless plain or desert, stretching away as far as the eye can reach on every side; save in one or two points, where a chain of lofty mountains can be perceived, whose brilliant, pointed summits, glittering in the sunbeams, just appear upon the distant horizon. The light that glares upon the plain is intense, as if the heat of a tropical fierce-ness, for no cloud shelters us. My-tered over the plain, an infinite number of circular pits, of different sizes and depths, varying from a few yards to some hundreds in diameter, and sunk in the body or crust of the planet; some of them but a few feet and others to an unknown, immeasurable depth. A boy's skin is black, out of which the sun gleams like a red-hot ball, and the stars sparkle like diamonds, to give by its refractive and reflective powers the shade to its landscape. The light and shades are intended upon its features deep and dark, or intensely bright; no softening away in the distance, no gentle and beautiful perspective; no lovely twilight, murmuring or evening, stealing over or away from the scene. All the shadows are abrupt, sudden, all the outlines sharp, clear, appearing startling near even when really distant. No sound follows our footfall or is ever heard in that silent place; for there is no atmosphere to conduct it; no fresh breeze blows on its mountain tops, sighs through its burning deserts, rustles through its brilliant-green of forests or waves over meadows, the silence of death broods over its arid wastes and rocky shores against which no tides or billows break."

MURDER AT KINGSTON.—On Friday evening last, the house of Mr. Reynolds was entered by some person with false keys, and chloroform administered to Mrs. Reynolds while in bed and asleep, from the effects of which she is supposed to have died, as she was found dead in bed in the morning. A doctor of Poughkeepsie is suspected of having committed the deed.

HOG STORY.—We heard a capital anecdote about hogs the other day. In Madison and other counties, acorns are very scarce. They abound, however, in the country of Estlin. Many hogs were driven here, which the Estlin people considered an infringement on their rights. Concils were called to deliberate how to rid themselves of nuisance. Many plans were proposed, but finally, after a good deal of debate, one was adopted, which was to catch one of the hogs, and then let her go. She immediately returned on the droves, but on the approach all the hogs took to flight, and by the sow with the bear. It is stated that since this precedent not a hog has crossed the confines of Estlin county.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.
Citizens of the Union—
You have done me the honour as with one voice, from one end of the Union to the other, to stamp the character of my Ointment with your approbation. It is scarcely two years since I made it known among you, and already, it has obtained more celebrity than any other Medicine in so short a period.

ASTONISHING CURE OF SORE LEGS AFTER NINE YEARS STANDING.
Copy of a Letter from Mr. W. J. Langley, of Harrisville, Franklin County, North Carolina, U. S., dated November 14, 1853.
I read His Own Words.
To PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY.
Sir—It is not my wish to become notorious, neither is this letter written for the mere sake of writing, but to say that your Ointment cured me of one of the most dreadful cutaneous diseases that flesh is heir to, and which was considered by all who knew me, to be entirely beyond the reach of medicine. For nine years I was afflicted with one of the most painful & troublesome sore legs that ever fell to the lot of man; and after trying every medicine I had ever heard of, I resigned in despair all hope of being cured; but a friend brought me a couple of large pots of your Ointment, which caused the sores on my legs to heal, and I entirely regained my health to my agreeable surprise and delight, and to the astonishment of my friends. (Signed) W. J. LANGLEY, AN EXTRAORDINARY CURE OF A BAD, ULCER, WHEN NEARLY AT THE POINT OF DEATH.
Copy of a Letter from Mr. R. Durant, New Orleans, November 9th, 1853.
To PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY, N. Y.
Dear Sir—It is with heartfelt gratitude, I have to inform you that by the use of your Ointment and Pills, the life of my wife has been saved. For seven years she had a bad leg, with ten running sores, (not of a cancerous nature). I was told that nothing could save her, she was then induced to use your Ointment and Pills, when in the short space of 3 months, they effected a perfect cure, to the astonishment of all who knew us. We obtained your medicines from Messrs Wright & Co., of Chartres-street, New Orleans. I send this from "Hotel des Princes," Paris, although, I had written it at New Orleans, before we finally left, at that time, not knowing your address at New York. (Signed) R. DURANT.
The Pills should be used conjointly with the Ointment in most of the following cases:—
Bad Legs, Leg Ulcers, Piles, Hemorrhoids, Rheumatism, Swelling of the Joints, Sore Throat, Sore Nipples, Contracted and Stiff Joints, Sore-heads, Stomachic Ulcers, Wounds.
* Sold at the Establishment of Professor HOLLOWAY, 38, Corner of Ann and Nassau Streets, New York; also by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicines throughout the United States; in Pots, at 37 1/2 cents, 87 cents, and $1.50 cents each. To be had Wholesale of the principal Drug Houses in the Union.
* There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.
N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each Pot.

1st. Because we work none but the very best materials, by the best workmen, which secure neat, substantial and durable work.
2nd. We are citizens of the country and expect to remain so, consequently are easier paid and can give more indulgence than northern men.
3rd. Because, should any of our work, by accident or mistake prove unsound, we are here to make it good.
4th. Because all the money paid to us is retained in the country, and paid out again to our own people, instead of being sent to the north to fatten already wealthy capitalists.

THE TWO RIVERS.

A STORY OF THE 18th CENTURY.

"Well," inquired Berthe, "did you take any step, or attempt anything with regard to the baron?"

"Nothing whatever," as yet," responded Gaspard, "but I am ready to convert with the baron, the sole persons who took a real interest in him; the only means of obtaining my grandfather's parson would be to say that I am married. Mademoiselle de la

Verriere; and at such a price I desire it not."

"I know that," he answered, "with a melancholy, though determined tone; "I shall make up my mind and write to the baron, my letter will have no effect of this I am well aware; it will not prevent his disinheriting me; but I wish to convince him; that under any other circumstance, I would have obeyed his will; I shall assure him of the true respect I still entertain for him; of my long and prosperous afterwards I will enter the king's army, and perhaps, I will make my way to fortune, if a del-et step on my way, I shall do without one regret; for there is not one soul to whom my life could be of the least interest."

Emilie lowered her head, as though the light faded from her sight; she remained thus, her face half concealed, and her clasped hands pressed upon her breast.

"Such is my resolution," continued

Gaspard; "I have no second course to adopt."

"The baron has not the power of entirely disinheriting you," remarked Ber-the; "you are his only descendant in a direct line, and according to the custom of Provence the rights of no other kin-man can prevail over yours."

"You are right," rejoined the young man, "but I am surprised to find the old man, acquainted with the customs of Provence; but our nobles feel are not inhabitable."

"Do you really think, then, that he would go so far as to change the nature of his property, and sell his estates for the purpose of depriving you of your inheritance?"

"You little know my grandfather's character! I never saw him, and I can fail to put a threat into execution. I have resisted, unmoved, his orders, and the only means of being reconciled to him, was to throw myself at his feet, and emphatically reject his orders. I have facially, conscious of what I was doing,

from him at present."

Still, as you see, observed Suzanne, whose attention and interest had been attracted to the subject, by her sister's, I would not be too hasty. The baron allows you to live here, peacefully, remains, Marcelles, and then he allows you to live with him, as far as our little means will permit,

Of necessity the chevalier de Greoulx cannot live like a mere clerk; he will lend you money.

"I cannot express all I feel for your affectionate interest; but who knows whether I should ever be able to repay

you?" interrupted the chevalier. "Consider that my future prospects are anything but brilliant. I may die without leaving enough for my funeral expenses, who, then, would pay my debts?"

"Don't mention that," brusquely retorted the Raven, "you may accept our offer without any scruple whatever—you may! I tell you."

Emilie listened in a silent attitude, her head bent down, her face concealed beneath her hood. How gladly would she have pressed to her heart these two poor old women, who were now endeavoring to force the young man to alter his plans.

She uttered not a word as long as his visit lasted; but no sooner was he gone, than she rose, and exclaimed, with a sweet smile, and taking gently Berthe's hand—

"How very kind you are! O! I feel quite well now; I long to be completely restored to health. I gave you so much trouble, and yet you uttered not a word of complaint! I can't tell you how gladly I will work for you, and how happy I shall feel to make myself useful."

From this day M. de Greoulx regularly visited the dames. There were at the time, but few patients in town; this allowed them time to receive his visits.

He was wont to come in the evening—

Berthe always took care to have a good fire, before which was laid the antique table, over which an old black apron acted the part of a table cover. Suzanne would then take from the press an old pack of cards, and Emilie bring a leathern bag, filled with mere lards (the fourth part of a sou).

The Ravens were very fond of cards.

This harmless amusement gave them now and then the opportunity of winning a few pence from Gaspard. Willingly did the young nobelman play their game, whilst the charming orphan, seated at the corner of the table where the lamp was placed, silently observed him talking or playing; yet so reserved were her looks, that she did not appear to lift up her eyes from her work. M. de Gre-oulx soon experienced the greatest delight in these evenings; albeit he had a strong dislike for cards, he found this game entertaining; and it was ever with feelings of regret that he heard the church clock strike nine, the hour at which he must retire, so unattracting was Emilie's beauty—so sweet was the expression of her large blue eyes, when applied to welcome his arrival! For the two old dames he entertained, also sentiments of gratitude, and even affection. Through their cold, and sometimes vulgar manners, a sound judgment and real goodness of heart were strikingly perceptible. It even happened, at times, that they spoke, as though in accordance with their rank in life.

In truth, they often expressed ideas which strangely contrasted with the niggard habits of their life. They wanted neither wit nor penetration; yet they did not in the least suspect that love would spring up between the handsome young man and the lovely orphan, who searcely conversed together, but stealingly stole a glance at each other, and seemed to place their happiness in dependence upon the success of their endeavour. Nor could they dream that such feelings might exist between them; for the poor old dames had no experience of the passions, no one having ever loved them.

M. de Greoulx yielded to the charm of this obscure, but tranquil existence, without caring about the past or the future. Never had his life glided away so quietly. There dwelt, for the first time within his breast, one of those paneate affections which so complete the thoughts, and from which arise every sad or joyful impression.

A few respectful letters which he had addressed to his guardian and relative, no answer had come; yet he wondered not at this silence. Such conduct
